1. How did Temujin (Genghis Khan) unite and organize the Mongol tribes? (Page 233)

2. Why did Nomadic people have a military advantage over settled peoples? (Page 233)

3. What was standard equipment for a Mongol warrior? How did they adapt?

Each Mongol warrior had standard equipment: a sword, a lasso, a short bow to use on horseback, a long bow for use on the ground, and an ample supply of arrows. More warriors wore breastplates and helmets for armor. Each rider had several ponies. Besides having a great skill as horsemen and archers, the Mongols were very adaptable fighters. They adopted Chinese technologies, such as gunpowder, to lay siege to Chinese cities.

4. How was the Mongol Empire divided and organized? (Page 234)
